The Ten Plagues of Egypt

Since Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread are kept this month, it's a good idea to review what it all means and why we do it.

A long time ago, Yahweh saw His people, Israel, suffering terrible bondage in the land of Egypt. He called a man named Moses to lead His people out. Egypt was ruled by a powerful Pharaoh, who refused to let Israel go. So the Almighty allowed ten plagues to weaken Egypt, so that Pharaoh had no choice but to let the people go.

The first plague was blood. The great Nile river (which Egypt depended on) turned to blood and the fish all died. No fresh, clean water could be found. The first plague was followed by frogs, gnats, flies, death of livestock, painful boils, hail, locusts which ate all the food, terrible darkness, and finally the death of the firstborn.

All the plagues were terrible, but it was the last one that finally made Pharaoh let the people go ... the death of the firstborn. Pharaoh's own son died in that plague. So Israel left Egypt. But their freedom was short-lived. Pharaoh and his army pursued them. The situation looked hopeless: Israel found themselves on the banks of the Red Sea (or Reed sea), with the army approaching them and performed ca miracle. The sea opened up and allowed the Israelites to cross to the other side! Pharaoh's army continued pursuing them and all drowned in the sea as the waters crashed over them and Israel crossed safely to the other side. So we commemorate Yahweh's deliverance every year. And even more importantly we remember Yahshua's sacrifice on our behalf that we may have a good and proper relationship with Yahweh.
